"Let us affront and reprimand the smooth mediocrity and squalid contentment of the times."

—Ralph Waldo Emerson (Essay on Self-Reliance)

What Would Washington Think?

Over a hundred and fifty years ago George Washington was a leader in our country and fought to preserve its independence. Nowadays we recognize his birthday as a national holiday and pay tribute to him for one special day. But just what do you think he would say if he could come back for a glimpse of the American way of life today? Would he be pleased at the progress that has taken place and all the modern conveniences that we now have, or would he look on in horror at the destructive power that various countries of the world now possess and the poverty and hunger spread over different parts of the world.

True, the advances in medicine, communications, and many other areas are miraculous, and in Washington's day were undreamed of—but what's the use of all this progress if there is the threat that perhaps some day no one will be around to enjoy them. George Washington, who is often referred to as the "Father of our Country," fought hard to lay the foundation for a country that could live without fear of losing its freedom.

Surely world-wide destruction was a horror that only the twentieth century has had to live with and is in complete disagreement with everything that Washington and other American patriots ever believed in.

This year as Washington's birthday approaches and school children and college students alike enjoy an extra day of leisure, let's give a little more thought to why we are paying tribute to this great man. Today's youth enjoys the fruits of yesterday's patriotism.

Students and War

The world keeps spinning and the people on it keep existing, most of the time in ignorance of what really happens.

In the war in Viet Nam, 40 United States soldiers were killed or wounded when their barracks were bombed. How many students at Boise Junior College read it in the paper and then casually turned to the sports page or comic strips and completely forgot about it? How many even stopped to read it?

The death of these soldiers, students throwing rocks at the United States Embassy in Moscow, or an East Berliner getting shot as he tries to cross the border doesn't seem to touch the lives of people around Boise. Why not? Because it didn't happen in our own back yard.

If democracy is to survive there must be a change of attitude in every city, town, and rural area in the country. To win a war, even a cold war, there has to be concern and a will to win. The concern seems to be lacking.

How many times has the Russian Embassy in Washington, D.C., been pelted by irate U.S. students in protest over some Communist action? None that we know of. This is good and bad. It shows the American students have the sense of decency and respect for the sanctity of the Embassy—and it might indicate complete apathy.

When caring stops then so will democracy. If democracy stops then so do we. The Russian students who pelted the U. S. Embassy while Soviet policemen calmly watched, care—they care because they've been taught to care by the Communist party. They haven't been given a choice between caring and not caring.

The U. S. student does not need to wreck the Russian Embassy to keep hope for the free world alive but certainly they should feel some resentment at the injustice that the Communist world has been heaping on America.

The next time a report of American soldiers killed headlines the front page of the STATESMAN it might be a little closer to home. One of the boys killed might be someone you knew or loved. Then the fire of hatred will burn bright and the resentment against useless wars like the one in Viet Nam will grow.

Problems, Problems . . .

Our sympathies are with the BJC trustees and administrators, now that the school has been given the go-ahead to expand. There is more to decide than building more buildings or hiring more teachers.

For instance—what is the athletic program to be for a three-year school?

How will the problem of credit transfers be handled?

Will there be two graduation classes?

How will the service clubs be affected? Will sororities and fraternities be proposed in the future?

How will the school be able to estimate the vast number of adults expected to enroll?

Who will comprise the first junior class?

And by no means least—what will be the name of the school?

At times like this we are glad to be mere students with only studies, exams and grades to worry about.

In the Library

By Dave Hobson

The new BJC library requires on its staff library assistants who not only take an active interest in their job, but also are willing to do it well. This semester's crew includes: Sally Barclay, Norma Catron, Adila Chetwood, Connie Cole, Linda Daly, Elizabeth Dillon, Carol Druash, Betty Jean Eklund, Sandra Garnett, Dawn Hale, Susan Hershey, Lynda Morgan, Elsa Pacheco, Rose Roberts, Cathy Sandmeyer and Laura Stroud.

All are part-time students either "working their way through college" or earning some spending money. The assistants work hard. In addition to checking books in and out they also prepare cards for new books, shelve books and review or "read the shelves" to be sure books are in their proper positions. In addition to the earnings, the girls feel they are gaining valuable experience.

Because difficulties encountered by the library assistants not only make work harder for them but also may hinder services rendered to the students and faculty, they have a few suggestions for all library patrons:

Be sure the book you check out is the one you want. Too many people take out books only to return them moments later.

Please cooperate with library rules and personnel.

Show consideration for your fellow students who use the library to study. You can gather in the SUB for social conversation.

WORDS WORTH REPEATING . . .

How successful are we? It is true that many of the apparent keys to "success" in college are quite dissimilar to those keys so essential to real success in life.

One would initially suppose that success in college would be similar to, if not identical with, success in life. Although this may be true, the extent to which it is true depends upon one's definition of success and the manner in which one approaches and handles college information and experiences.

College "success" always indicates that the individual has mastered for at least an instant and perhaps a lifetime the concepts of the various courses included in his curriculum. To do this requires some perseverance and variable quantities of real comprehension and understanding, and these characteristics are most certainly a part of real success.

But what is "real success"? To many a college student, success is an "A," and to state that such a definition is entirely incorrect is itself incorrect. But one who defines "real success" as the mastery of an idea or group of ideas should be wary, for although an "A" denotes mastery of a single fact of life, it by no means connotes mastery of life in its entirety and complexity . . .

For a mentally-gifted student to obtain an "A" or even to graduate with honors, and at the same time to fail to allow sufficient time or expend sufficient effort to develop a wholesome personal philosophy, emotional stability, and solid, contagious integrity is equivalent only to partial success . . . —excerpts from a winning pledge essay by Theodore M. Jacobsen, in the U. of Utah Daily Utah Chronicle.

PAPER CLIPS

The Three Thieves, a coffee house in Everett, Wash., is under the management of three Everett Junior College students. All the owners are freshmen and plan on running the establishment through their freshman and sophomore years at EJC, according to The Clipper.

Open only on the week-ends, The Three Thieves provides a variety of folk singers. They also have comedians and occasionally poetry is read. On Friday and Saturday nights professional entertainers from all over the Northwest entertain. In the near future art work is planned.

The College Crier, Baltimore Junior College, in Maryland, states that motor scooter riders and cyclists must walk their vehicles to the parking area from a barrier near the street. Failure to conform to this simple rule will result in losing one's parking privileges.

Dress reflects attitude. How is your attitude? On the campus of the College of Southern Utah better dress standards of students was discussed in The Thunderbird.

Students look better, work better, and feel better when good dress habits are in order, according to Dean Tingey.

Georgia Institute of Technology in Atlanta suggests a way of eliminating profanity at movies and sports events: Schedule a gun hour to get grossness out of the system.

The hourly session would start with a 15-minute warm-up period of screaming four-letter words with prizes awarded on originality of combinations of such words. The next period would be devoted to bottle throwing. Then comes a session of reading gross implications into normal, everyday situations. Here the ingenious Texan can devote his full creative abilities to a worthwhile pastime.

After a shower and shave, the participants can emerge to see the civilized world—it sees him.

Supreme Court Ban Increases Bible Study

One result of the Supreme Court decisions against prayers in public schools is an increase in the study of the Bible as literature, writes Lawrence W. Hall in a February Reader's Digest article, "Is Religion Banned from Our Schools?"

Associate Justice Tom C. Clark has encouraged this, saying "the Bible is worthy of study for its literary and historic qualities" and "such study presented objectively" does not conflict with the First Amendment.

"Teaching the Bible as literature has perhaps won more practitioners than any other," writes Dr. Hall. "In Indiana, almost two-thirds of the public schools use the Bible in their literature classes."

Bronco Grapplers Test Ricks Friday In Revenge Match

Revenge will be the word of the day for the Boise Junior College wrestlers when they entertain the Ricks Vikings in a match involving Intercollegiate Athletic Conference members Friday afternoon at the Boise Junior College fieldhouse.

The match is set for 4:30 p.m. with the Vikings. The meet will be BJC's final outing before they trek to Ephraim, Utah, for the ICAC meet February 26 and 27.

BJC will be taking a 3-4 record into the match after a win last Friday over Blue Mountain Community College. The Broncos dropped the Mountain Men of Pendleton, Ore., 29-0, sweeping all the matches plus two exhibition encounters.

The match will be the second of the year against the powerful Vikings. Earlier this year the Broncos dropped a 39-3 test to Ricks on its home mats. Coach Ray Lewis' matmen will be out to even the score Friday afternoon.

BJC CLOSES BASKETBALL SEASON; VISITS ONTARIO THIS WEEKEND

The Boise Junior College Broncos close out their 1964-65 basketball season on the road this weekend when they meet Treasure Valley Community College in a pair of games.

The Broncos will be out to win their seventh and eighth games of the year against 15 losses. The Chukars will be taking it on the chin from BJC for the fourth time this year—if they lose both games.

The Broncos blasted the Chukars 88-57 in the first outing but had to battle TVCC in overtime the second meeting before winning the game 85-79.

The Ontario squad has been improving since the last contest and have played such squads as Washington State Frosh, and other Ingoton State University Frosh, the teams that could tend to make them tougher to beat.

BJC DROPS SNOW

The road trip Boise Junior College took into Utah came out half successful when the Broncos defeated Snow Junior College, but were handed a defeat by Dixie.

The win came Saturday night

BJC took an early lead and finished the first half with a close 35-31 lead. A second half show of power by the Broncos put them ahead by a good margin the rest of the game.

Randy Ackley continued his high-scoring ways for the Broncos by dumping in 21 points. Lee Harvey pumped through 16 while Ron Beall added 14. John Williams was one of the forces that sent the Broncos to the front with ease in the last half as the 6-2 freshman hit 15 points.

NEW BREAKTHROUGH IN FITNESS COUPLES TWO TRIED TECHNIQUES

By JIM POORE

Science is always on the move perfecting new and better ways to live, and it hasn't forgotten the physical side of life. The way to a stronger, more enduring, and better looking body has been simplified with a new machine called the Exer-genie. The Exer-genie is being used by businessmen, housewives, as well as college athletes and coaches all over the country, with great success.

The Exer-genie is the latest breakthrough in physical fitness, but combines two theories that have been in existence a little longer. Isometrics, a well known exercise, and the lesser-known Isotonic are the two basic principles used in Exer-genie.

The theory behind both exercises is muscle resistance to an object that is immovable, or almost immovable. The Exer-genie was developed by Coach Dean Miller of San Jose State, a member of the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

The unique thing about the machine is that you can isolate a group of muscles and work on them. Women can isolate the upper underarm muscles and thereby reduce them. In a test run by Dr. Miller, a group of women from 54 to 69 years old, took two inches off the arms in a month. The older a person becomes, the harder it is to lose excess weight, authorities agree.

Women can work on the bustline, hips, inner thighs, etc., with tremendous results.

The Exer-genie not only helps work the muscles but it works the heart at the same time, giving the all-important muscles a chance to build up endurance.

The coaches around Boise Junior College have been using the Exer-genie with their athletes with good results. Bronco sprinter Clinton Alley has shown good results that could help his time this spring, Coach Ray Lewis reports.

The Exer-genie is a machine for almost every American. Test runs between American and European youth show that we are running a very poor second and no relief is in sight—with the exception of machines like the Exer-genie.

Tests in a submarine with the Exer-genie showed that without any other physical activity the men in the experiment lost undesirable weight as well as adding needed muscle.

Anyone wishing further information in regards to the functions of the Exer-genie, the proper use of the machine, and where it can be obtained, should contact Coach Ray Lewis in the BJC gym.

Oregon Coach Is Author

University of Oregon bowling Coach Lou Bellissimo has written a new bowling instruction book in textbook form, "The Bowler's Manual," published by Prentice-Hall. By including over 130 actual photographs, Bellissimo has sought to make the manual self-teaching so that students can work directly from the book.

A unique feature is the section on "Faults and Corrections" with "before" and "after" illustrations of bowling errors to help players correct their mistakes.
